

ABSTRACT

[0232] A method for extracting and detecting analytes that are metabolically associated with biological samples, as well as, for distinguishing between those which are environmentally associated and those which are metabolically incorporated is disclosed.